SEC. 3. UNITED STATES POLICY ON THE NUCLEAR WEAPONS CAPABILITY OF IRAN.

On September 20, 2009, the Supreme Leader of Iran, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, stated that Western nations “falsely accuse the Islamic republic of producing nuclear weapons. We fundamentally reject nuclear weapons and prohibit the production and the use of nuclear weapons”.

(2) President Bill Clinton, on August 5, 1996, signed the Iran and Libya Sanctions Act of 1996, which President Clinton stated was intended to “limit the flow of resources necessary to obtain weapons of mass destruction”.

(3) In his 2006 State of the Union Address, President George W. Bush stated that “[t]he Iranian government is defying the world with its nuclear ambitions, and the nations of the world must not permit the Iranian regime to gain nuclear weapons”.

(4) As recently as April 2015, President Obama reiterated in an interview that “[m]y goal, when I came into office, was to make sure that Iran did not get a nuclear weapon and thereby trigger a nuclear arms race in the most volatile part of the world”.

(5) Secretary of State John Kerry, in the confirmation hearing on his nomination for appointment to that position on January 24,

2013, said about the development by Iran of a nuclear weapon that “[o]ur policy is not containment. It is prevention, and the clock is ticking on our efforts to secure responsible compliance”.

(6) In a March 2015 letter to Congress, President Obama stated that “[c]ertain actions and policies of the Government of Iran are contrary to the interests of the United States in the region and continue to pose an unusual and extraordinary threat to the national security, foreign policy, and economy of the United States”.

(7) On March 26, 2015, testifying before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate, Generals Lloyd Austin, David Rodriguez, and Joseph Votel, Commanders of the United States Central Command, the United States Africa Command, and the United States Special Operations Command, respectively, all agreed that “in terms of the long-term threat in the region, Iran is the greatest threat to stability”.

(8) On February 26, 2015, testifying before the Committee on Armed Services of the Senate, Director of National Intelligence James Clapper was asked “[i]s it still [United States] policy that no options are off the table and that Iran should not have a nuclear weapon?” Director Clapper replied, “[t]hat’s my understanding, yes sir. [ . . . ] No option is off the table”.

(b) DECLARATION OF POLICY.—It shall be the policy of the United States that the Islamic Republic of Iran should not obtain nuclear weapons.

Mr. President, as in executive session, I ask unanimous consent that the injunction of secrecy be removed from the following treaty transmitted to the Senate on April 27, 2015, by the President of the United States: Protocol to the Treaty on a Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in Central Asia, Treaty Document No. 114-2. I further ask that the treaty be considered as having been read the first time; that it be referred, with accompanying papers, to the Committee on Foreign Relations and ordered to be printed; and that the President's message be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The message of the President is as follows:

To the Senate of the United States:

I transmit herewith, for the advice and consent of the Senate to its ratification, the Protocol to the Treaty on a Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in Central Asia, signed at New York on May 6, 2014 (the “Protocol”). I also transmit for the information of the Senate the Treaty on a Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in Central Asia (the “Treaty”) to which the Protocol relates, and the Department of State's Overview of the Protocol, which includes a detailed article-by-article analysis of both the Protocol and the Treaty.

Ratification of the Protocol is in the best interest of the United States, as it will enhance U.S. security by furthering our objective of preventing the proliferation of nuclear weapons, strengthen our relations with the states and the people of Central Asia, demonstrate our commitment to the decision taken at the 1995 Review and Extension Conference of the Parties to the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons that helped secure that Treaty's indefinite extension, and contribute significantly to the continued realization of the Central Asian Nuclear-Weapon-Free Zone in all its aspects. As the Department of State's Overview of the Protocol explains, entry into force of the Protocol for the United States would require no changes in U.S. law, policy, or practice.

I recommend that the Senate give early and favorable consideration to the Protocol and give its advice and
